Comic Opera le Particularly Abundant in Town-" Edelweiss" in the Bowery-Trials of Some New Pieces-Notes of the Week's Various Changes of Bills, A new play of the week is "Edelweiss," at the People's. The scenes are in Switzerland. there is a coherent plot, and the principal character is an humble Swiss girl, who turns out to be a great heiress. This part is played by Mattie Vickers, an experienced and accomplished soubrette, with a command of both humor and pathos. She speaks a Swiss-Linglish dialect quaintly, dances and sings agreeably, and is a first-rate entertainer. The play ts no great thing in a literary way, and is reminiscent in material, but it serves its purpose very well.

The town is finely provided with comic opera for the summer. On Monday night the Bostonians started an engagement at the Garden that is likely to reward them, and must surely please those who hear them. They have revived De Koven and Smith's merry opera. "Robin Hood," a distinct credit to its American composer and librettist. It is picturesque in every scene, tuneful throughout, and at times clever and original in its humor. When it was first sung in this city, at the Standard, it was markedly successful. At the Garden it has had no difficulty in renewing its triumph. The cast shows only one change, in the accession of Camillo d'Arville as Maid Marian. Miss D'Arville is an imposing young woman with a fine voice and a sprightly manner. Jessie Bartlett Davis's attractive presenceand impressive contraits are again used to advantage as Allan-a-Dale, and Tom Karl's Robm, W. H. MacDonald's Little John, and George Frothingham's Fract Tuck are, as they were originally, excellent impersonations, both in acting and in singing. Karl's Robm Hood has gained noticeably in manliness and grace. Frequent encores have surplied evidence that the Bostonians are welcome, and that "Robin Hood" is accepted with enthusiasm. It is a pity that its Garden engagoment cannot be extended beyond June 4. The revival of "Wang" at the Broadway is also to be brief. It has only a fortnight longer to stay. Digby Bell's "Jupiter" seems well equipped for an all summer term at Palmer's, while "Child of Fortune," at the Casino, is equally in favor. The new Fifth Avenue will be ready probably for the Barrymore-Puerner opera on May 28. Men are working on the house night and day, and the impatient members of the company are praying that there will be no further post-ponements. enceand impressive contraits are again used to the impatient members of the company are praying that there will be no further postponements.

Fifteen professional elecutionists of this city and Brooklyn have called a convention of "public readers and teachers of elecution in the United States," to begin on June 27. F. Mackay, Alfred Ayres, Anna Randall-Diehl, and Nelson Wheateroff are well-known names attached to the call. The annual meeting of the alumni of the American Academy of the Dramatic Arts is appointed for June 13 at the Berkeley Lyceum. That variously glitted actress, Emma V. Sheridan, is President of the association, and a considerable number of players known to fame are members. The matinee performance of "The Parvent," by Herbort Kelcey and Eugens Ormond, postponed from Tuesday at the Lyceum in consequence of Ormond silness, will be given to-merrow. The first of the summer spectacles to open will be "The Fall of Flevna." at South Beach, on Saturday evening. The modified law regulating the employment of children on the stage will not go into effect until next fail. In the mean time Commodore Gerry is enforcing the present act with uncaual rigor. He compels the retirement of four youngsters from "Wang" and at the same time permits little Dot Clarendonto do high kicking lin "Kit, the Arkansas Traveller." This leads some folks to surmise that the discrimination against the Broadway Theatre is made because Mannager Sanger led the movement for the amendment of the law. As to the silverware which the Baltimore lodge of Elka sent to Augustin Daly, for him to deliver to the Actors' Fund Fair, but which remained in his theatre until the fair was over. Mr. Daly writes to The Sur that he was not to blame. "A box was left at the stage door some time since," he explains, "and there, remained until I returned one day last week from Philadelphia, when my attention was called to it. No letter and no card to me accompanied the package, but upon examination I discovered that it was intended for the Actors' Fair, and by my orders it was sent at once to Mr. Pailme

The conjunction of Harry and John Kernell at Pastor's, this week, is rather an important event in the estimation of variety audiences. Their dialogue has been imitated, in matter and manner, by many couples of comedians, but never with complete success, the drollery of Harry being proof against duplication. Kostor & Bial have begun the importation of a line of foreign entertainers. The first to arrive are Dufor and Hartley, a man and woman, experts in dance, pantemime, and characterization. They are artistic in their doings, as well as novel, and their introduction is in keeping with the promise that stronger features are to be offered at this garden. John Brougham's old but ever-new burlesque, "Focahontas," is to be performed here soon. The conjunction of Harry and John Kernell

It is not often that a Monday night in May furnishes four new plays on the out-of-town stage, and all of them apparently successful. Last Monday Philadelphia sat in judgment upon Hugh Gratian Donnelly's comedy, "Her Ladyship:" Buffalo passed its verdiet upon the Byrne-Harrison-Furst opera, "The Isle of Champagne," and Boston saw two new things in "A Fool's Paradise" and "The House on the Marsh." "Her Ladyship" was written to fit the portly personality and the voluble and riant art of Helen Barry, who seems to have been happily suited in the title role—that of a gay English woman who takes a hand in American politics. Seyeral novel situations in Donnelly's piece have gained praise from his reviewers. "The Isle of Champagne" is declared by a trustworthy authority to be "a genuine success, tunctui, wittz, and picturesque." T. Q. Seabrooke has yet to claborate his role, but his company contains a surprisingly good prima donna in Minnie Landes, who is new in comic opera, it is believed. Librettist C. A Byrne attended the initial performance, and W. W. Furst, who wrole the music, conducted the orchestra. They received a curtain call. "The House on the Marsh' is Mervyn Dailar's dramatization of Florence Warden's stery of the same title. Miss Warden dramatized the story and acted it in England, but the Boston performance was the first in this country of any form of the play as Gerease Engine. The important rôle of the governess was cented by Kate Vandenhoff. "A Fool's Paradise' proved to be a revised version of The Mouse Trap." by Sydney Grundy, acted it Wallack's in the Albert Laglish idvises who made up Albert's singularly unbalanced campany. The Labert her husband, and the frastration of that attempt through the devences of an excentric the English biyers who made up Abbey's singularly unbalanced company. The thay has for its theme a wife's attempt to poison her husband, and the frustration of that attempt through the deverness of an escentric old dector. It failed at the provious trial. In Boston it seems to have faired made better. But this change in its fate may be due to the fact that the plays show acted with E.S. Willard as the blunt and elever physician.

Margaret Mather and Vernona Jarbeau are widely diverse netroses at two theatres in town this week. Miss Mather is at the west side Grand, where she has alwars been welcomed with ferve. She is still very penular, it appears, for her revival of the Fig. 5then, has been greeted with marked favor. This spectacular rehabilitation of victor Hago's very old romantic play. The Hunchinek of Notre Dame, has more ments than defects, in spite of its ancient manner. It is a straightforward melodrama with an interesting story, a plausible plot, and several well-decided studies of characters at Miss Mather's hands it has been placed on the stage with care and elaborateness, and so it is be means a too old or too feebleshow, as it might easily have become if it had been treated in expensively. Miss Mather's interestation of Esmeralda possesses about equal elements of Fower and weakness. Her west side antichers are partial to her, however, and so he has not lacked plaudits. In her support goed work is contributed by Joseph Whiting and this skinner. This is the closing week of Miss Jather's senson, and the last, also, during which she will have the assistance of Skinner as her lending actor. It is asserted by Miss Mather's counsel that there is no unfriendliness. This indicates that, after an inharmonious senson. Miss Mather and Mr. Skinner will go their separate ways amicably. During the earlier weeks of their tour their disagreements were both numerous and serious, and it is consoling to know that they will go their separate ways amicably. sensation play. "The Police Patrol" apparently has satisfied its Harlem audiences. It is one of several dramas, all of one type, which have made a handsome fortune for their manager, A. T. Pearson, who, with Harry Greenwall, has just leased the Union Square. Mr. Tearson obviously alms at the multitude, to the sacrifice of what we love to call art. There is no art in any of his ventures, but there is a very large share of business shrewdness, it would appear. "The Police Patrol" is a poorly written play, viewed from the student's point of view, but it somehow draws plenty of plaudits from its auditors, and surely its scenes of realism are cunningly conceived. As in most sensation plays of this day, the actors are subordinate to the scenery and the mechanical fixings. The clatter of korses' hoofs, the rush of wheels, and the clanging of bells are as quick to sur the east-side rulse as the sight of good acting and the sound of a powerful voice. Ir. "U and I." Jacobs's audiences have found two old friends—T. J. Cronin and Katle kooney. Cronin is among the best frish comic performers on our stage, katle Rooney, the stepdaughter of the late Pat, was schooled effectively, if not always gently, and now she is a highly attractive figure in farce comedy. Her specialties in song and dance are neat and cleverly executed, and her acting of a French dialect role was unexpectedly careful and consistent. Frank Gardner has replaced Gus Brune as the Gorman. Conceiding them, though in this old play he has worn hem almost constantly for the past five or six seasons. Little Dot Charendon sings and dances, and there are other agreeable performers in Harry C. Dietz, the "Alabama" colored quartet, and J. F. Mackie.

Final performances at hand are those of "Across the Potomac" at Troctor's Twentydidn't look in the right place or his opera glasses were not strong enough. He ran out into the kitchen and got a double-harrelied shotgun, but he couldn't get a shot, because the girls covered the retreat of both men. He went gunning about town for them after that, but they esented. The following Saturday his daughter became insane. It was thought that the trouble was only temporary, and, rather than have any more scandal, the matter was allowed to rest. On May 11 Mr. Hatfield received the following letter from Dr. J. J. Daly, who had examined the girl:

The map shows the location of the comet. looking directly east at 3 A. M. It will be in the constellation of Pegasus, northeast of Beta (b in the map). The three or four stars of the sixth magnitude in the neighborhood will help to identify the comet. If the moon were not so bright these nights the comet might perhaps be seen with the naked eye, but, as it is, a strong opera glass will be necessary. Even with the opera glass the observer will see only a hazy something, with scarcely anything in the shape of a tail. But the comet, says Mr. Garrett P. Serviss, who is a connois-seur in comets, is much bigger than it looks, and is the most wonderful of all known

It certainly is, if its tail, almost invisible here except when viewed through a telescope, is correctly represented in the photographs is correctly represented in the photographs taken by Prof. Barnard of the Lick Observatory on the 5th, 7th, and 8th of last month. The accompanying cuts are made after descriptions of the appearances of the tail as revealed in his photographs. The queerand unprecedented excrescences on the tail have not been seen on this side of the continent, doubtless because of the denser atmosphere. For the same reason, even through powerful telescopes, only three or four degrees of tall have been seen hereabouts, although Prof. Barnard found the tail to be twenty degrees long. This indicates that the comet is a big one, for even when it was nearest the sun it was not so near as the earth is, and it has never been within a hundred million miles of the earth. Although so far away, the head of the comet has been as bright as a star of the third magnitude.

"Your letter was received a few days ago, but until now I have not had the time to spare to answer it. Also, I cannot make the matter any plainer to you new than I did at the time of the occurrance. I will now repeat the opinion I gave then, that her insanity was wholly due to what took blace in your oarlor between her and Wiss." The doctor then explains that insanity in such cases is a common eccurrance, and adds: "I also told you that I loped that after treatment in an asylum for a short time her reason might be restored. But at this date, and as you tell meshels no better. I believe she never will be better. "Trusting that some day this scounder! Wiss will get his just deserts, I am respectfully, yours.

"J. Daly."

After receiving this letter Mr. Hatfield took yours.

After receiving this letter Mr. Hatfield took the matter before the Grand Jury of Union county. He says that an indictment was found, but that it was reconsidered. There is no chance for a future Grand Jury to act because before the next Grand Jury meets the two years in which the indictment must be found will have passed.

"There is no hope of my getting justice any way now." Mr. Hatfield said, "except by a civil suit, and I shall begin one at once." Prof. Barnard has an idea that the head of the comet rotates at right augles with the direction of its motion, but that is said to be scarcely possible. The fantastic shapes of the comet's tail are attributed by Mr. Serviss to the irregular illumination of parts of the various mass by electricity. The comet is, at all events, a puzzle to astronomers. If it had come so near the san and to us as the comet of 1882, there is no teiling the wonderful phenomena it might have displayed. The comet of 1882 was the most eccentric of comets then known, but it couldn't hold a candle to this comet, even when seen so much nearer.

People who do not take the opportunity to see the comet with'n the next lew days will never get another chance, even if they should live ten million years. The Swift comet, as it is called, after its discoverer, will never return to this system.

The bill does not provide for capacity had largely increased, and that the licemond and Panville could readily take care of its interest charges, including interest on its floating debt, from its net carmings. Gen. Thomas said that the East Tennessee Virginia and Georgia Railroad need not be considered in any scheme of reorganization, since it is on a firm basis and can take care of itself. No separation of these properties from the system is however, contemplated.

The Chairman, Mr. W. E. Strong, was authorized to increase the number of also committee to five, and instructed to report to another meeting of stockholders to be held Monday alternoor at 315.

No information could be obtained as to the plan which is expected to be submitted to this meeting. The floating indebtedness of the Richmond and Danville road is about $5,500,000. It is claimed that any money contributed by security holders for the payment of this indebtedness can be amply secured by a tien on the securities owned by the Richmond Terminal Company. The underlying securities will not be disturbed at all under the new plan. It is understood that the committee of stockholders and keep in touch with them in any steps that are taken. the amount to be expended, but it has been variously estimated at from $1,050,200 to $2,000,000. Some of the descendants of the old New Utrecht settlers, whose larms run old New Utrecht settlers, whose larms run along the shore road, do not view the prospective boulevard with much favor, and a half a dozen of them called upon Mayor Boody esterday for the purpose of acquainting him with their views. High McLaughlin introduced the delegation. They told the Mayor that in their opinion the Commissioners whom he is to appoint should be men of inexpensive ideas, that the new roadway should not be more than seventy-five feet wide, that the existing natural leasties should be preserved as much as possible, and that the entire cost should be limited to $750,000. The Mayor agreed in general terms that economy should be strictly observed in carrying out the project.

The action of some members of the Conference in hissing Dr. Tigert, the fraternal dele-gate from the M. E. Church, South, was liscussed freely during the lull in business, and many unfavorable comments were heard. The hissing was caused by a remark by Dr. Tigert that "The Southern whites are the best friends of the colored men." The darkskinned delegates and their sympathizers did not believe this, and groans and hisses were directed at the speaker. It is the consensus of opinion that the insult offered to Dr. Tigert will delay the proposed consolidation of the two Churches.

Gov. Evans of Colorado offered a resolution setting apart the districts of Colorado, west Sebraska, South Dakota, Arizona, Utah, New Mexico, and Wyoming as a publication dis-trict, and that a committee be appointed to superintend the publication of another Christian Advocate, as the Rocky Mountain Advocate

After a parliamentary wrangle, the resolution was laid on the table—181 to 173. The third ballot for second member of the Cheinnati Book Concern resulted in the election of Lewis Curts of Chicago. Jesse L. Hurt was elected Secretary of the Sunday School Society by acciamation.

Dr. J. W. Mendenhall was elected editor of the Methodist Review by acciamation. It was decided to postpone the election of all officers whose work is affected by committees not yet reported until the reports can be acted upon.

The report of the Committee on Itinerancy was taken up for discussion.

The majority favors the removal of time limit, believing Methodism could be better served by the permanent location of ministers. The minority do not favor the removal of the time limit. The whole committee recommend that the discipline be amended to read:

"When a travelling prencher is accused of being so unacceptable, inefficient, or secular as to be no longer useful in his work, the Cenference may require him to ask for a location, and if he shall refuse to comply with the request the Conference shall hear with him till the session next ensuing, at which time, if he persists in his refusal, the Cenference may, after formal trial and conviction, locate him without his consent, provided, however, that in no case shall a preacher be located while there are charges against him for immorat conduct."

Dr. Edwards, Chairman of the committee spoke in favor of the majority, holding that the abolishment of the time limit would not abol-ish, but rather premote itinerancy in the Church. The report gives the lishop author-Church. The report gives the Bishop authority to annually make appointments, thus relieving the churches of poor men, and making strong men secure in their pastorates. He believed there would be more changes under this rule than under the five-year limit.

Fig. Caswell of California favored the majority, saying that with the time limit, the almanae and not the judgment of the Rishop nor the influence of the Holy Spirit governed the term of a minister.

The Committee on Revisions recommended that the discipline be amended, making it obligatory upon the stewards of all churches to provide unfermented wine for use in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

BELIEVES IN SUNDAY RECREATION. Justice Cooper, Lay Delegate, Astonishes

At the second day's session of the annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal Dioese of Long Island yesterday, held in St. Paul's Cathodral, Garden City, a special committee on Sunday observance handed in its report. After it was read Lay Delegate James B. Cooper of Babylon, who is a Justice of the in that town, took the floor. He said he did not believe in the church sanctioning any measures to suppress the violation of the Sunday laws in Long Island City and other towns in Queens county. He held that clergymen who visited resorts of vice in New York city were as much criminals as the person or persons who kept them, and that they should all be convicted and punished altke.

Before the gray-haired Justice had half finished his remarks the Convention was in a commotion, and cries of "No! No!" came from all parts, while the clerical delegates were on their feet demanding a retraction of the remarks. Instead of doing this Justice Cooper resterated his charges. This added to the excitement, and it was not until Bishop Little ohn, who was sitting among the dele-gates, relieved Plan Cox and took the enair time order was finally testered. In addition to the remarks mentioned, Jus-

TRYING TO BREAKHER FATHER'S WILL Mrs. Verdi Accuses Her Sister of Undur In-fluence Over Her Father and Mother,

WASHINGTON, May 18.-Mrs. Tullio S. Verd! wife of the well-known Italian physician of this city, has instituted proceedings to break the will of her father, Thomas Sunderland who died six years ago, leaving an estate which is now valued at nearly $400,000. prominence of the family, the amount of property involved, and the sensational charges which one member of a family brings against others add to the interest of the case.

Mrs. Verdi asserts that her father was much attached to her, and expressed his intention of providing for her in his will. During the last four or five years of his life, she says, he was enfeebled by excessive indulgence in liquor, which was in the nature of a disease and was regretted by no one more than himself. His unmarried daughter, Jessie A. Sunderland, the petition avers, conceived the idea of inducing her father to make this will, thinking her mother would turn over the estate to her. With this intent she urged her father to make the will in favor of his wife, under the plea that the mother would do justice to her children. Since Mr. Sunderland's death, the petition declares, Miss Sunderland's delives the personal property also, since Mr. Sunderland, in her catacity as executrix, never filed an inventory of the letter with the Probate Court. Mrs. Verdisnys that her sister is unmarried, strong, and of vigorous presence, with an iron will. Her nature was such that any person under her influence would be dominated by her. Mrs. Verdi helieves that two years before her father's death he was forced to convey $200,000 worth of property to his wife. In conclusion petitioner says that she knew nothing of these things when the will was admitted to probate, and so offered no opposition. The only heirs are Mrs. Sunderland. was enfectied by excessive indulgence in

HOTCHKISS WILL CASE.

Rafiel Wood Wrote Letters for a Purpose Which He Has Now Forgotten.

The contest over the will of Marie E. Hotchciss was resumed yesterday before Surrogate Ransom, with Rafael Wood, the principal beneficiary under the will, in the witness chair, Mr. Wood was forced to admit that the question of his aunt's will had been the subject of some thought by him before her death and that he believed her to be worth several hundred theusand dollars. He said that he always had a friendly feeling for his aunt, Mrs. Hotelikiss, with the exception of about one year. in 1886. It was a true feeling of affection. He frequently wrote letters to her during 1830. A large number of these letters were introduced in evidence. In one letter "to my dear, dear manma," the witness referred to the fact that he had written a most aflectionate letter to his aunt. Mrs. Horelikiss, and said, "If my present letters don't draw her feelings out for me, I think it is useless for me to try to have her think any more of me. But fortunately it had a splendid impression. It looks as if she thinks a little of me."

Wood admitted that the letters he wrote were for a purpose, but when asked what the nurpose was, he said he could not remember. true feeling of affection. He frequently wrote were for a purpose, our when asset a nurpose was, he said he could not remember. He donied that the purpose was to make his aunt think better of him than he deserved. In another letter he told his mother to keep her eye on his aunt, find out what she was doing, and keep him posted. He told his mother that she could count on his aunt's estate being $300,000 at the lowest.

The Court Asked to Interpret Parts of

WASHINGTON, May 18 .- C. C. Glover and James M. Johnston, executors, have filed a bill for an interpretation of the will of the late George Panerofi. They say that they have received from bonds. &c., $300,000, and from the sale of property at Newport, E. 1, $140,000, and have paid out sums for deb's and legacies. In the discharge of their duties they have discovered that in parts of the will the language is ambiguous, and they cannot fully discharge their duties until the same has been judicially in duties until the same has been judicially interpreted. They were directed to sell his manuscrint historical collections, but by no means his private papers, and the ultimate irideto certain private papers is not set forth. They are uncertain whether he embraced them in the paragraph as to the investment of the fund from conjugitatic and they are doubtful as to whether their powers will cease three years from the dute of protate, when they are directed to transfer to the New York Life Insurance Company as trustees.
